Say I have a pattern like this: f1, f2, f3, f4 Given a collection of views, how can I get all of them whose views are in this pattern. In other words, it's the views whose first element is in the given pattern. Is this possible using Linq? A: Yes, you can do this with the following LINQ query: `var views = new[] { "f1", "f2", "f3", "f4" }; var query = views.Select((v, idx) => new { View = v, idx = idx }).Where(v => v.View.StartsWith(pattern));` If you have a few more, then you can group by the index and use that group in the Where clause. In Part 1 of this series, we looked at the 3 versions
