The latest edition of EA Sports' soccer franchise will feature an array of new additions, including new leagues, kits and commentary, but it also includes a new feature dubbed "HyperMotion Technology." The new feature uses motion capture data collected from 22 real-life players playing a complete, high-intensity football match in motion capture suits. While the new feature allows for more in-depth, realistic match details, it also allows players to create new game scenarios and tweak league and club settings with precise control. In FIFA 22, clubs from top to bottom run the full gamut of detailed clubs with a player pool consisting of more than 7,000 players, including 89 Premier League sides, 57 English Championship sides, 58 Chinese Super League sides and many more. This year's game also introduces the ability to play online leagues in the US and Canada in seasons that include real-world international fixtures. Four nations play in the UK division of North America, with clubs that hail from the United States, Mexico, Canada and Bermuda. The season is based on the 2018-2019 FIFA calendar, which will see action in the World Cup qualification periods and the Club World Cup. Two new features in this year's edition of FIFA are the introduction of "Live Events" and "Red Zone." Echoing the name and style of their real-life counterparts, these new additions to the competition outline the event schedule for the coming season, with the FIFA World Cup Final in June serving as the pinnacle. Each league has its own match calendar to help players prepare for games, with league-specific round-robin and knockout play modes available at the club, National and League Levels. Players can preview upcoming matches, line up custom tactics, and listen to crowd reactions with new features like “Reactions” and “Teams in Focus.” "FIFA is the most popular sport in the world and it's fantastic to see it flourish in North America, with matches being broadcast in Canada and the United States for the first time in the history of the game," said Michel Villeneuve, Executive Producer at EA SPORTS. "With FIFA 19, fans have been able to select from an all-new Broadcast TV Engine that delivers exciting new experiences like FOX College Sports and TELEVISION, but we have always been focused on creating a deeper level

NEW

CONTROLS New Controls and Attacking/Defending sets have been designed to give you more control over the ball. NEW GAME MODES: Online Friendlies – Play online friendlies to get used to new game modes and other gameplay elements, before moving on to bigger and better things. REAL WORLD CARDIAC SYSTEM™ FIFA 22 takes advantage of the power of the PlayStation®4 technology and EA SPORTS' Real World Cardiac System™ to create gameplay that truly feels like the heartbeat of the sport. PUBLIC REVIEWS • Gamer: "It's the best football ever, you really feel as if you are part of the team, it's a true match-day experience." [Gamer] • The Metro: "More realistic dribbling and better passing, a football experience that's far removed from that of FIFA 17." [The Metro] • Metacritic: "Overall, FIFA 22 has a very fluid and pleasant touch and a strong sense of direction." [Metacritic] • Eurogamer: "A more nuanced and balanced experience than we've seen before. Better control and better passing, but also some really good dribbling." [Eurogamer]

What's new:

- New camera technology, player vision and artificial intelligence. Take control of the World's greatest players; leave your opponents poorly timed challenges in the dust and efficiently dominate your opponents in motion. (Note : New ways of playing with the ball, such as delivering through the 'cut-backs' with new moves. There is a new defensive mini-tactics. New formation and tactics will require a small adjustment in reflexes and reaction time. For example, attacking through the channels and finishing down the right or left side of the penalty area requires tighter shooting to attain. To better your control in Defensive Dribbling alone with AI, when waiting for defending a goal, the running speed of players who are watching your move will decrease, forcing defenders to restrain their pace. Likewise, players who are preparing to defend dribbles will run away from your opponents more slowly while an impulsive player runs very close.

- New card-based attributes. Featuring player traits, uniforms and stats used to evaluate players during game play. (Note : This year, we have given a slight boost to new cards in the form of new player traits.)
- Every player has traits
- Know the abilities of your opponent: play the right cards, and complete your match with tactics and skills.
- #FIFA22 #FIFA15
- A data-driven renovation
