

A: To answer your question about the difference between the two, here is what you can do:

```
a=np.array([1,2,3]) b=np.array([10,20,30]) c=a>b print(c) #prints True

What happens in this situation is that: `a>b` is NOT a comparison of numbers in Python! What it is is a comparison of the boolean type. You can see that by trying to convert them to strings: `a>b` #gives the following error:

```
TypeError: unorderable types: str() > int()

The way you can still do what you need to is by using: `np.logical_and(*[a>b,b`

Viking Age Sketches: The Magic Tree by Helen Of Lode This is my first post on Viking Age Sketches. Let me explain why. I've started researching and writing my novel in Viking Age Sketches, where it will be a little more formal than on Viking Age Retreats. When I switched to the site, I kept making notes that I wanted to share here so here they are. I'm also going to make some short blog posts here to track what I'm learning. I also switched to paper when I didn't want to take time to do research on my iPad or at the computer. Paper is much more portable and "keeps" for a long time. I'm not sure if it will be a "life-choice" or not. I'll just have to wait and see. Helen of Lode is the founder of Viking Age Retreats and the author of nine books. She writes about her journey as a lady of leisure who always had a pen and paper with her - from the nomad tent, to castle, to royal court and beyond.
