I never never download a file from on the internet, not even from the author of the site I am on. But to fix your problem I need to download the D3DX9.dll file from the source I mentioned, by entering the link in the address bar of your browser. I'm not explaining this again, and again and again. So get back to reading, and when you find the link, enter it in the bar of your browser, and then you will see the d3dx9_39.dll file on your computer. May is already gone, so you won't be able to download it because the site owner has closed it down. Anyway, that d3dx9_39.dll is the file you need.
