Then, there are two main tools that we can use: Photoshop and Gimp. However, because you're probably a beginner, I'll be using PS as a method for this tutorial. This will save time and allow you to focus on the exercises instead of having to switch apps whenever you want to do a different thing. However, this is not a game, and you can do this with Gimp if you know how to use it. Your headshots shouldn't be that dark. If your headshots are dark, you will have a hard time trying to fix them in the next step. But, if your headshots are lighter, you'll be able to do the exercise easily. Here is a link: Youtube - How To Take Headshots https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=k5A2a_BvTGM&feature=youtu.be . While you're on the main page, you can play the following video, and just put your cursor over the subtitle, you can see which has better English voice-over, and click to the following link: YouTube - How To Take Headshots? <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=GgjRlxaHlc&feature=youtu.be> . This headshot is very simple. The subject placed his forehead against the wall and closed his eyes. There is no important moment to be captured. After that, headshots are not hard! If your subject looks great in this picture, I would recommend to continue on to the next step. Due to the fact that the article is written in another type of language, it is quite hard to understand without those people who know the language. PowerPoint also has a wide range of shapes available. You can insert a shape in your slide by using the Insert tab, the Drawing Tools tab, or the Drawing toolbar. For example, you can insert a Freehand Shape, a Box, or a Circle. Insert line text and line text boxes. These are useful for the point or bullet point and bullets. Use the formatting tools to format the text to suit your needs. If you need something else, you can add your own custom shapes that are placeholders for text, images, and more. PowerPoint has a variety of prebuilt shapes and slideshows that you can insert. You can get the same look as these by inserting a photo with a background, such as a picture of an office lobby or the front of your building. So now that you've got your goose, what to do with it? You can use various PowerPoint tools to customize the presentation. You can insert the picture by right-clicking on the slide. Select the slide layout if you like, and then select the custom tab. You can add your own graphics to this tab, or add the picture as is. So in addition to using the different

PowerPoint tools to insert pictures, there is a way to insert pictures directly into slides. You can do this by simply selecting a picture file and then dragging the picture onto a blank slide, and then clicking "Place" when you're done. This method doesn't allow you to change the position, size, or shape of the picture, but it does let you add the picture to a slide.
