

The country is, from a certain angle, a big salad bowl, where different types of spices are the food, and different types of people are the spices. They are many processes in the country that are not necessarily good for Mexicans. Compared with Canada, I think that Mexico is much smaller, but at the same time, more complex. To get the job, I had to get a visa, but I had never lost the opportunity to take the quest for my professor in Toronto or the United States. The reason I chose Mexico was because I wanted to stay for a while. I had been in some cities, but I had not had the opportunity to live like a Mexican. And those motivations and this background came to Mexico, where I have not seen before. But over time, I realized that I would have to live here for a long time. Cultural differences - I will try to be very honest, the first time I arrived, I said I am not racist. I did not even think. But then I saw the situation and I realized that I can only tell you because I have been born here. I will not lie, so if I say it was not easy I was embarrassed, because I thought that it would be the problem of the country. But when I arrived here it was the first time and you realize that there are a lot of things that you do not know. The culture of the country I would say is quite different from what we know in Mexico. So you need to be very open to it. Mexico is not my country - The first time I came I had no expectations. But they were very wrong. But I was really surprised and the surprise was in full force when I came here for the second time. And it was a very strong force. It was almost like a revelation. When you arrive for the second time, you know and you see things differently. Before it was something that they thought, now I will tell you what I mean. The day is practically the same, but here is a difference, the first time you live here and take your time, you take it easy and you live. Mexico a country of great contrasts in the north and the south - I would say that Mexico is a country of great contrasts. Mexico is very diverse. You can walk in a city in the north and it is very modern, very prosperous and in the south, it is all I think that it is poor, poor. It is another thing to live
