438 So.2d 396 (1983) Alfred Edward PICKETT v. STATE of Mississippi. No. 54873. Supreme Court of Mississippi. October 6, 1983. David Robert Wall, Laurel, for appellant. Edwin Lloyd Pittman, Atty. Gen. by Carolyn Quine Mattioni, Sp. Asst. Atty. Gen., Jackson, for appellee. Before WALKER, ROY NOBLE LEE and ROBERTSON, JJ. ROBERTSON, Justice, for the Court: Alfred Edward Pickett is before us on appeal following conviction by a jury on a charge of kidnapping. He was sentenced to twelve (12) years in the custody of the Mississippi Department of Corrections. I. There was a 911 emergency call at approximately 7:15 p.m., July 18, 1981, by which call came to the attention of Corporal James W. Davis of the Hattiesburg Police Department. The call came from a residence at the corner of Ash and 27th Streets in Hattiesburg. A woman's voice told Corporal Davis that her husband, who lived in the residence, had been kidnapped. The woman told Davis that her name was Jeanne Scott. She further informed the officer that the offender had entered the residence with a handgun, forced her to strip and would not let her call for help. Corporal Davis proceeded to the Scott residence. Upon his arrival a few minutes later he found a male resident seated in a chair. At the doorway, however, he saw a woman lying facedown in the doorway, apparently dead. The area in the doorway was well lit, permitting the officer to see into the darkened interior of the home. The *397 woman in the doorway had bruises and swellings on her face, a broken nose, a black eye, and blood on her legs and clothing. The police were called, and she was transported to a local hospital. Meanwhile, another law enforcement officer, Patrick Allen Kirk, had gone to the residence at 27th and Ash Streets to investigate. He was joined by a deputy sheriff, Dean Gage. They found the victim, Jeanne Scott, bleeding profusely at the doorway of the home. After being informed of the emergency, the
